Track how many steps you take, then calculate how many extra fries you can eat.

We're 99% sure that's how this works. And that missing 1% is only because someone told us it doesn't have to be fries necessarily - any junk food will do.

Last week we accidentally omitted the post exercise fries (shocking we know, but stranger things have happened) and we noticed a leaner, more toned look to ourselves almost immediately.

Personal improvement. Urgh.
